Agreement reached on Bethel Station land deal

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Finally, it's a deal.

The Bethel selectmen and developer Heinie Merrill reached agreement last week on the final details of the Bethel Station land-for-building swap.

The agreement follows months of lengthy, complicated negotiations over building details, legal arrangements, infrastructure costs and escrow amounts.

Escrow amounts for the project's infrastructure work were the last issue to be resolved. Merrill eventually agreed to put away an amount equal to 115 percent the expected cost of road and utility work on Cross Street and on the two new project roads, the Parkway and Lincoln Street.

The escrow account is intended to protect the town in the event state or federal funding fails to materialize or actual project costs exceed estimates.

The terms of the land swap commit the developers to build the Parkway, even if state and federal funds are not available.

Even at the end the board was split over whether the extra 15 percent was enough to protect the town against cost overruns.

Selectmen Bob Chadbourne and Rick Whitney thought not, and held out for a higher figure.

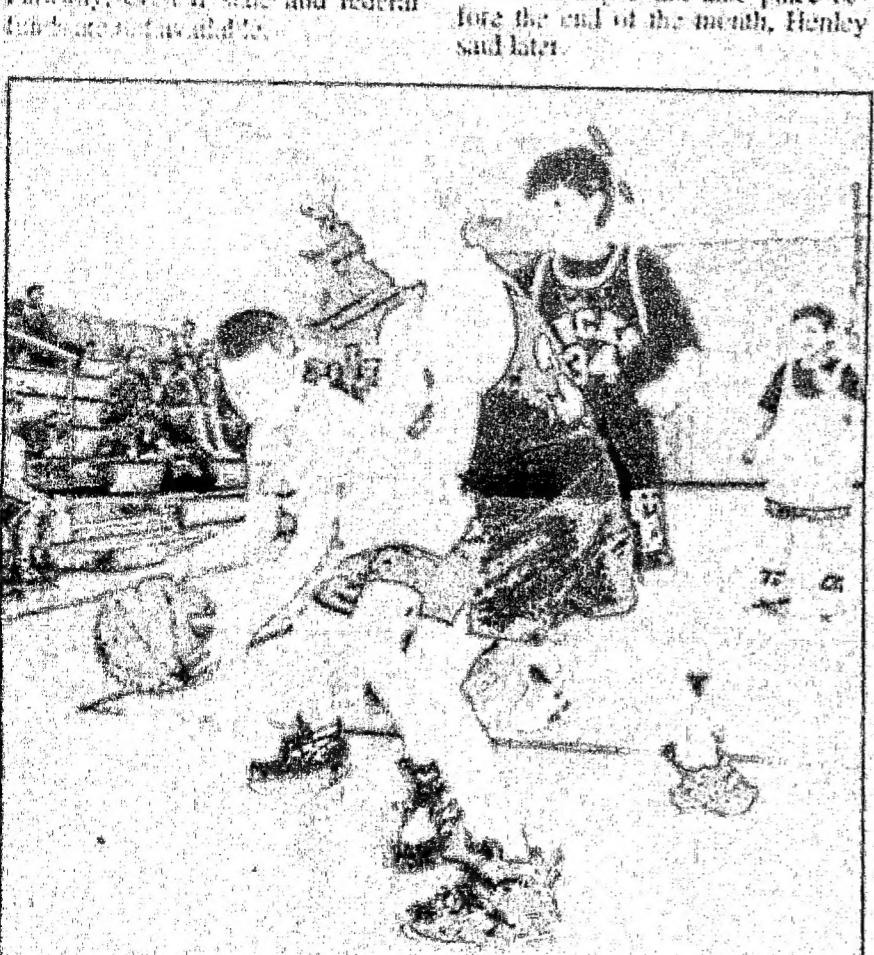

But three remaining board members, Dutch Dresser, Art Gilbert and John Thurston said they were comfortable with the 115 percent figure.

Merrill said this week that he is "greatly relieved" that agreement has finally been reached.

The next step for the developers, he said, is to exercise their options on other parcels of land involved in the project, and then to deed a right of way to the Maine Department of Transportation, so that construction of the new Parkway can be put out to bid.

No date has been set for the formal closing. The board has authorized chairman Gilbert and Town Manager Madeline Henley to execute the preliminary legal documents.

The closing could take place before the end of the month, Henley said later.

New technology is forcing new kinds of trade-offs

By ALISON ALOISIO

SAD44 directors and administrators Monday night weighed teachers against technology as they try to build a budget palatable to taxpayers.

It quickly became clear that this year's heavyweight item will be computer technology.

Supt. Ronald Jenkins and his administrative team told the board that upgrading computer offerings at Telstar Middle School to the level of those at CPS is badly needed, even though it would come partly at the cost of a guidance counselor and an English and business teacher at the Telstar complex.

"The administrators agreed that the number-one priority for the district next year is technology at the middle school to provide continuation of what is happening at the elementary level," CPS principal David Murphy said.

The administration is recommending that the district spend about $150,000 to upgrade the computer

Town Meetings

Greenwood to vote on town manager proposal

By MICHAEL DANIELS

Greenwood voters will decide Saturday if they think the town is ready to move to a town manager form of government.

With an otherwise routine warrant, the town manager issue is expected to provoke the most lively debate of the day.

At last year's Town Meeting, voters overwhelmingly approved forming a committee to study the town manager question.

After numerous meetings, including interviews with officials from towns that had adopted town manager government, the committee recommended last month that the town take the step.

That recommendation, however, met a distinctly cool reception, at least from the handful of people who turned out for a public hearing on the matter.

The study committee argued that a town manager would make town government more efficient, more responsive, and would enable the town to tackle issues that are currently going unaddressed.

Woodstock offered land near municipal complex

By ALISON ALOISIO

A land purchase and winter road maintenance are expected to be top items for discussion at Woodstock's Town Meeting Monday.

Selectmen are proposing $449,839.77 for the town budget, down from $622,228.79 in 1994, a year in which the town purchased a new $126,000 fire truck.

But even with the smaller budget, voters will be expected to raise nearly the same amount in taxes ($773,919.01) as last year, due to less money from surplus being applied to reduce taxes, coupled with an expected increase in the SAD44 assessment.

Voters will be asked to approve $25,000 from the tree growth account to purchase land near the town office, currently owned by Kenelm and Nelwyn Farnum.

Part of the property is between the Baptist Church and the Paul Billings' property, and includes a Central Maine Power right of way and the town office's access road right of way.

Upton officials recommend account for legal fees

By ALISON ALOISIO

Upton's 1995 budget will have an estimated increase of about $2,000 over last year's due to increased school costs, according to selectman chairman Robert Brown.

Townpeople will vote on the budget at Thursday night's annual Town Meeting.

The municipal budget voted at last year's meeting was $65,513.

Brown said he hopes figures for warrant articles dealing with general and vocational education will be available for Thursday.

The School Committee decided recently to send students to school in Errol, N.H., rather than SAD 44.

Among other articles to be considered is one requesting that $5,000 be raised to establish a legal fees account.

Brown said a lawsuit filed against the town regarding a school bus driver job is not directly related to the request, but the suit did prompt selectmen to recommend setting up the account as a future precaution, he said.

Voters will also be asked to ap-

Gilead wants a better deal on Bethel ambulance

By ALISON ALOISIO

In an apparent echo of Albany's recent ambulance service dispute, Gilead voted at Saturday's Town Meeting to pay Bethel $1,500 less than the $4,000 requested for ambulance service this year.

"It's not fair to ask Gilead to pay $1,000 more than they charge the county," selectman Fernand Corneau said at the meeting, in reference to Bethel's agreement to provide rescue service to Albany in the coming year for $3,000.

Another town official, who did not wish to be identified, said later that selectmen want to meet with Bethel officials to negotiate a better agreement.

"Albany has more miles and more people than Gilead, so it doesn't seem right that Gilead gets charged more," the official said.

The ambulance appropriation was part of the $183,578.53 budget approved by voters Saturday, up slightly from last year's figure of $179,245.64.

The article prompting the main discussion by voters authorized selectmen to borrow up to $70,000 to replace the town's 12-year-old truck, which will be traded in.

WORLD CLASS DAY—The weather couldn't have been better for Sunday's finale of the U.S. Women's Pro Ski Tour, held at Mt. Abram in Ledge Mills. Unfortunately, local favorite Julie Parisien of Auburn lost in her season-long battle for the top spot, falling to Camilla Lundback of Sweden. Parisien did clinch the $5,000 Prokofieff of the Year Award, and ended the season with $32,350 in earnings. Mt. Abram owner Rick Hoddinott said the local skiers hoped to host the pro tour again. "We describe ourselves as a family-friendly mountain," he said, "and the women skiers were wonderful with the kids, working and clinicng with them." The skiers also liked the Boris Badenov trail (center), he said, and the fact that the race course is clearly visible from the base lodge. "They said this and Keystone were the best two racing sites all season," Hoddinott said. (Photo by Michael Daniels)

STRAIGHT FACTS ON OUR BIG SIGN

To the Editor:

Our sign came about in 1989. At that time we had five or six signs varying from 90- to 160-square-feet each. We designed a sign, 196 square feet, and before erecting it we confirmed the size with the town manager, Rodney Lynch, for approval. It was approved with no limitations.

In November of 1990, we came to the Bethel Planning Board to open a restaurant. We were told at that time our sign would have to come down to conform with the new sign ordinances if we wanted to construct our new restaurant. We then proposed to the town to remove all our smaller signs, which would beautify the area and only allow one sign, the present sign of 196-square-feet. The board would only agree if we had a limitation of four years, meaning that after a four-year period we remove the sign.

Three years later, 1994, we closed our restaurant. Our waiver was to end, and I came to the board with other sign designs to replace the existing sign. I came mainly because I felt that where I sat on the board I should take the sign down so no one would think that I was being favored because of my position.

After numerous conversations with my wife and people from the Bethel community, I realized that I was doing it for the board and not myself. I do have rights. Because I sit on this board, I shouldn't lose my rights and what I believe in like my sign. I feel it is beautiful. No one had ever complained that our sign was a burden, too big, obnoxious. The only thing I heard was people using it as a comparison, I was going to put a $6,000 burden on myself -- why, when I have a perfectly good working sign that needs only a $600 paint job.

Our sign's texture and beauty reflects its surroundings. Our art work shows the beauty and peacefulness of Maine. Now that you have some history, I have been on the Bethel Planning Board for four years and feel I am very fair to each and everyone that appears before the board. Mr. Don Horley sat on my family's behalf that we were good citizens and part of this community. That made us feel glad to live in a small town where everyone knows you and your family. This is what Bethel is all about. It's the people that live here. Everyone is worried about where Bethel is heading. If we are to keep the community of Bethel -- separation of people's closeness and togetherness, as we have for years -- people need to communicate with their neighbors. Nobody wants to be isolated from the community but ourselves.

Regarding the Ordinance, every year or two things have changed with the people of Bethel the board is not here to protect or to take away people's rights, but to help individuals to strive to be better. The ordinances were put together by a few to accommodate the town.

Please come to the board to see what they need to do to meet the ordinances. We have a board need to make a decision on hardship, burden, etc. We work with the individual to structure their needs to our community. We do not say no to everyone, this is the ordinance, why not say a board just puts out the ordinance and tell them to meet the ordinance. But, we are here to help individuals to meet the ordinance.

It's time to stand up for individuals for our town and community. It's time to stand up -- that's the price you have to pay for owning a business. A. Clothing or not, everyone still gets up and goes to work. Dennis Doyon is as dedicated as anyone. See Mr. Doyon resign over the sign. Mr. Doyon can't look beyond the ordinances to individuals. He is a pawn for him. It seems to me that this is personal because just recently Mr. Doyon voted in favor of a sign six months ago. Why resign over this one?

As for the sign, he put up six internally lit signs, I never heard of this statement was made by a member of the board -- to the best of my knowledge Mr. Dumont wanted to be could, if so desired, I do not see him put up six internally lit signs -- period.

Let's turn our back to basics and enjoy our neighbors instead of being stuck in arguments without knowing all the facts of both sides. Let's work together for the betterment of people. Let's try and construct some good ordinances not only for ourselves but for our children and their children. We would love to see some kind words come from people of that town.

As for the sign I can not sign approved because I sit on the Bethel Planning Board. I think it's really wrong. This is strictly a hardship -- I do not like to take down my originally approved sign and absorb a fine. The sign was approved by this town and now you expect me to take it down. The best I made a fair and honest decision.

WAY TO GO, CPS CRUISERS

To the Editor:

I would like to offer my congratulations to Maine Handicapped Cruisers on their very successful fundraiser last Saturday. This effort is, without a doubt, one of the most meaningful events held in our community.

As principal of the Crescent Park School I would like to personally thank and congratulate a special group of our fourth graders who participated in this event. The Crescent Park Cruisers successfully raised over $1,300 by soliciting contributions all over town. The children from 10 local offices at the Bethel Foodliner, spoke at the Bethel Party Club via telephone along Main Street and solicited contributions from friends and relatives. They spent Friday afternoons planning and coordinating these fund-raising efforts. Many long hours were devoted to their cause.

This education goes well beyond mastery of specific subject areas. Its goal is to produce citizens who will be assets to their community, individuals who understand the value of working together to promote ideals and beliefs which will make the world a better place to live. It is in this spirit that I offer my congratulations to the members of the Cruisers: Ashley Oliver-Captain, Cassie Mason, Billy Murphy, Kane Olson and Brian Zachuk.

ADMINISTRATIVE SALARIES—The graph above and chart below show the salaries recently agreed to by the SAD44 Board of Directors and the Telstar Administrators Association. In addition to the salaries, the administrators each receive from $4,500 (FY'94) to $6,000 (FY'97) per year in insurance benefits and as a group they split a pool of from $6,000 (FY'94) to $8,000 per year in tuition reimbursement and conference funds. The WES principalship is a combination principal and guidance position, and the figure shown above is only the administrative component. According to figures compiled by Superintendent Ron Jenkins, the local salaries are lower than the comparable statewide average, except in the case of CPS principal David Murphy, whose pay is slightly above the statewide average. The district superintendent, business manager and other administrative staff and supervisors have separately negotiated contracts.

ENOUGH DON QUIXOTE AND DAVID VS. GOLIATH;
GIVE US BALANCED COVERAGE OF SIGN ISSUE

To the Editor:

You have commented and others have written in support of your position on the Dumont sign case. Before you complete the nomination application for the presentation of the JFK Profile in Courage Award to Dennis Doyon, you should, in the name of balanced journalism, at least consider the fact, as in most instances of life, that there is little which is purely black and white. The Dumont sign case, in my opinion, possesses a good deal of gray. I know it is more fun to cavalierly portray Doyon as a modern version of Don Quixote, tilting at windmills. But it may be fulfilling to you to assume the role of David in facing down those terrible Goliaths of the Planning Board majority. Respectfully yours in, however, demands more.

In your editorial, you fail to take into consideration the fact that the Dumont sign was installed prior to the enactment of the sign ordinance. You also fail to mention that the Dumonts did remove some of their signs in favor of the big one.

One factor that prompted the Bethel Planning Board to exempt this sign was that it had existed before the ordinance. If one was to follow the logic of your editorial, there are other large signs in town, some of which have existed for more than a half century, that should, perhaps, come under the purview of sign ordinance enforcement authorities.

Even more glaring, in my opinion, was the omission of any understanding of the basis for ordinances of this type and their potential effects.

Ordinances exist with the consent of the governed. There must be majority support for them to be enacted and for their continued existence. In this case, as in others, property owners have supported them, giving up some absolute rights for the greater good of determining with enforcement officials something that meets delineated community standards. This is a delicate balancing act. If enforcement goes too far on the side of leniency, the ordinance becomes moot; too zealous compliance can lead to revocation by the voters. The latter situation in the late 1960s resulted in the end of a zoning ordinance for Bethel.

One other point I believe needs to be made. In the name of responsible journalism, you should have disengaged in disclaimers at least for one political party, now it is your turn to "fess up."

Stan Howe
Bethel

Editor replies: Dr. Howe is quite correct in pointing out that we should have noted in our March 8 editorial that Dennis Doyon works for a newspaper owned by the same publishing company that owns the Bethel Citizen. We did not do so at the time because that relationship had no bearing on the matter at hand -- i.e., the Dumont sign extension. On further consideration, however, it would have been wiser to make note of the connection, if only to prevent it being pounced on by those who would use such irrelevancies to distract attention from the real issue at hand. In a small community such as ours, the ties of family and friendship, commerce and politics are tangled indeed. In deciding which of these relationships should be noted in our news or editorial pages, we are forced to fall back on old-fashioned, seat-of-the-pants judgment -- if we think a particular relationship creates a context our readers would want to know about when they evaluate a writer's opinions, then we'll spell it out; if not, we'll leave it out. This test applies equally to writers on our staff and to outside contributors. In his final sentence Dr. Howe refers no doubt to an incident that occurred last fall, when he wrote a letter of support for Republican gubernatorial candidate Susan Collins and was identified in the newspaper as the chairman of the Oxford County Republican Party. Dr. Howe had not noted that connection in his letter, and he argued vehemently that it was unnecessary and unfair for us to identify him thusly. But as much as we respect the integrity of his political positions, we disagreed, and we printed the identification. Finally, and with some surprise, we must take exception to Dr. Howe's apparent implication ("one party") that there is anything partisan about the way this newspaper is edited -- we believe he knows better. The current editor certainly "fesses up" to being a registered Democrat (life-long, liberal, laterally lamenting), but Democrats, Republicans, Greens and whatevers are treated equally in these pages. When we are aware that a letter writer (especially someone endorsing a political candidate) has a relevant affiliation with the Democratic Party, then we tell our readers. Sadly, of course, there don't appear to be many living, breathing, letter-writing Democrats hereabouts (the last one we identified had posted from Arizona), so we seldom get a chance to demonstrate this last point.

Equipment

Jenkins said two other key components of the upgrade, additional computer software and staff training, could be financed through cuts in other areas, including the Telstar teachers. A computer technician/teacher would also be added.

He said those steps would be part of a three-year plan to bring all district schools to the same level in computer offerings.

At Woodstock Elementary School, principal Bruce Bell is proposing to shift half a kindergarten teaching position and half a Reading Recovery position (due to decreased enrollment) into service in the school library. The change would allow them to build up a media center for more effective use of computer technology.

Bell and Murphy said using computer resources could bring savings. "We can implement what we're doing now in more effective ways by diverting from textbooks to technology," he said, adding that textbook companies are shifting to CD-ROM software over books.

Bell used SAD44's anticipated expansion of Internet hookups to try to alleviate some directors' worries about the quality of the gifted and talented services in the district.

"Through Internet we can provide a whole host of activities to challenge students for a relatively small block of money," he said.

In a related proposal requested by some directors, administration is also proposing upgrading the Telstar library.

Maine State Library consultant

Walter Taranko, who studied the library's needs last fall, recommended the purchase of more computer-based information technology, and removing some 1950's vintage reference books.

Telstar guidance counselor Joanne Chase asked directors to keep the human factor in mind in deciding whether to trade technology for teachers.

"If you look at all the guidance programs at the high school, they would be cut in half. The personal guidance groups would go. We deal with many issues -- divorce, drugs, and alcohol," she said.

Administrators also described non-technology budget additions at Telstar requested by directors, including more music, department chairmen to better coordinate curriculum, and an in-school suspension tutor to avoid putting students out of school as punishment.

Vocational changes

Other changes would come partly because of the planned addition through NOVA of vocational hospitality and graphic arts programs.

Graphic arts, home economics, and industrial arts would no longer be offered to middle school students.

Jenkins said prior to the meeting the funding for the vocational programs would come from SAD44's budget, rather than NOVA's.

No decisions were made Monday.

The board will consider other budget areas at its next workshop, scheduled for April 3 at 7 p.m. at the Andover School.

Briefly

Upton to send kids to N.H.

UPTON--A three-year, $14,000 bid to transport Upton students to Errol, N.H., was accepted by the Upton School Board contingent on passage of the proposed budget at the Town Meeting. The sole bid, from Lucy Nelson, was about $1,240 more per year than anticipated. SAD44 Superintendant Jenkins, school agent for the town, said Upton will still be required to pay its share to NOVA. The school committee was also informed the town still needs to provide transportation for the one high school student in Upton.

Green Party meets

NEWRY--Five people attended an organizational meeting of the Oxford County Chapter of the Green Party last week. Coordinator Scott Jerome of Newry and member Tom Foote of Hiram said they were encouraged by the enthusiasm of those who did attend, and they plan another meeting next month in the Norway-Paris area. Former gubernatorial candidate Jonathan Carter will be the speaker then. Green Party members say their philosophy is to have an economy based on fair pay to the land, fair pay to the landowners, and the responsible use of Maine's natural resources.

Gill passport can't be suppressed

PORTLAND--A federal judge last week denied a defense motion to suppress evidence in the Charles Gill case -- namely a passport Gill is alleged to have shown Oxford County Sheriff's deputies when he was asked for identification after being arrested in December. Gill was indicted by a federal grand jury in January on two counts of making false statement in the use or application of a passport. The indictment charged that Gill presented a passport with a false place of birth to Bethel Area Health Center officials and later to the sheriff's department. Gill's defense attorney said the only reason Gill used the passport was he happened to pull it, rather than some other form of identification, from his briefcase when asked by the deputies. Gill is also facing state charges of unlawful practice of psychology and theft by deception. His trial on the federal charges is scheduled to start Friday.

SAD17 comprehensive school OK'd

AUGUSTA--The state Board of Education voted unanimously last week to fund a $28.9 million vocational high school project for SAD17. The school will be known as Oxford Hills Comprehensive High School. The new school will combine vocational technical studies with traditional academic classes in a first-of-its-kind school in Maine. The project has been in the works for years, and will serve technical students from SAD 39 as well. Bids will be solicited this spring and construction is expected to begin by summer and be completed in late 1997.

Less emission testing, more ozone?

AUGUSTA--The health effects of ozone, an issue long ignored in the ongoing debate over car-emission tests, has been revived by a legislative panel that is weighing the need for the controversial tests. A Harvard health expert told the Natural Resources Committee that a third of Maine's people risk impaired breathing during high ozone periods, and that the high ozone results in the hospitalization of many asthma sufferers. Dr. John Spengler said that the number of people with asthma is increasing, which suggests that the total population at risk is increasing, too. Maine's controversial auto-emission testing program and sale of reformulated gasoline are among the steps taken by the state to reduce ozone-forming emissions. But the car-testing program has been suspended for a second time in seven southern counties, and a repeal initiative could force a statewide vote in November. Bills have also been submitted to stop the sale of the cleaner-burning reformulated fuel. While Spengler called for a regional approach to getting rid of ozone, committee members said they need to know how much of the pollutant is blowing in from other states.

House-to-house beauticians out?

AUGUSTA--A bill before a legislative committee would prohibit beauticians from serving people in their homes except in an emergency. It would also allow only beauticians and barbers who practice in licensed salons or schools to have an active state license. Many hair salon businesses support the bill because they say the house-to-house hairdressers get more tax breaks, are not required to be licensed, and are not regulated on sanitation practices. One house-to-house beautician told the committee she does pay taxes and adheres to sanitation standards. She said 90 percent of her customers are elderly, and some don't have cars.

From the Bethel Police log:

Skateboarder thinks spring means a fresh start

Sunday, March 19
At 1:09 p.m. a 19-year-old Bryant Pond man was observed by police riding a skateboard on Main Street in front of Bethel Pizza. A check of the skateboard violation book showed the (repeat) violation should result in a 30-day loss of the board. The man was not pleased with the loss, saying he felt everything started over again with the new year. Police explained it did not. The subject said he would discuss it with the Police Chief.

At 11:00 p.m. an Annis Road resident reported a jeep with no tail lights had been driving around in the woods all night. At 11:00 p.m. the vehicle exited the woods on to Annis Road and turned right at a high rate of speed. Police checked from town to Newry Corner but were not successful in locating the vehicle.

Saturday, March 18
Police received information from the Oxford County Sheriff's Department that two men had been cashing scratch tickets stolen in a burglary of an Orliss store the night before, that had already been cashed. The men had been changing clothes between stops. The tickets were validated and paid out, but not stamped "paid." All stores in Bethel that have scratch tickets were advised.

Friday, March 17
At 12:57 a.m. police stopped a vehicle operating erratically on Route 26. A search revealed a marijuana pipe with residue in it in plain sight. The juvenile driver stated it was his. Juvenile intake paperwork was completed.

At 1:26 a.m. a High Street resident reported someone was on the IGA roof. Police secured the building and called the Bethel Fire Department to assist with a ladder. The caller said she had seen several male subjects walking near the rear of the store. A moment later they were gone, then she saw movement on the roof. Asked if it could have been a cat, she said yes, as she didn't know what it was. Police observed a cat jumping off the roof, and didn't find anyone on or near the roof.

Thursday, March 16
At 5:15 p.m. a caller from Big Bob's Country Store reported a female under 21 had attempted to buy beer. She went to the cooler, took it out, but then put it back. The store had had a previous incident with her purchasing alcohol. The store owner told her that she would no longer be allowed in the store. The owner said he wanted the police to advise her of that as well. When police arrived she was gone. The store owner was told if she was located she would be told not to return.

At 9 p.m. police responded to a disorderly party on Mechanic Street. The officer spoke to a party-goer currently on probation and subject to testing for the use of alcohol. Police asked her if she had been drinking, and she stated she had. Police placed her in custody, transported her to the Oxford County Jail, and administered a breathalyzer test, the results of which were .15 percent.

This report highlights points of interest from the Bethel Police Department log, but does not include all reports of police activity.

And based on the conversations with officials in other towns, the committee concluded that a professional manager might save the town more than enough money to cover the cost of his or her salary.

But the residents at the hearing didn't buy the idea that hiring a manager (at a projected cost of $22,000) would save the town money, or make town government run any more efficiently.

Voters Saturday will decide the issue for themselves.

Budget up

This year's budget in Greenwood includes two firsts: for the first time in at least 30 years the town has not had to borrow tax-anticipation funds; and for the first time ever the town budget will break the $1 million mark.

The selectmen are projecting a total town budget of $1,090,902, up from $914,584 last year.

Approximately one third of that increase is accounted for by the SAD44 tax, which selectmen project will increase from $495,000 last year to $575,000 in 1995. The $575,000 figure is an estimate -- if it proves accurate, the town's school tax bill will have increased more than $100,000 in just two years (Greenwood contributed $470,207 in 1993).

The municipal component of this year's budget is $385,441, up from the $349,584 approved by voters last year.

The largest single component in that increase is $21,000 requested for blasting ledge on a section of the Greenwood Road. The ledge in question is at the blind elbow south of Point Hill. Road Commissioner Alan Seames said logging above the ledge has created drainage problems at road level -- making an already dangerous corner even more so.

There are also increases of $500 or $1,000 in a number of other accounts.

The Greenwood Fire Department is asking voters to approve $8,000 for the purchase of four self-contained breathing apparatuses. If approved, however, the money would come from fund balance, and would not be included in the municipal budget.

The selectmen are recommending that the town take $130,000 from fund balance in order to reduce this year's taxes. The recommendation is for considerably more than the $75,000 approved last year for this purpose.

First Selectman Marie Bartlett said that at the end of 1994 the fund balance stood at more than $600,000, and the town auditor recommended that more money could not be put toward offsetting taxes.

The fund balance has been growing, Bartlett said, because taxes have been coming in well, and the town received more than $33,000 in tree growth penalties over the past year. The fund balance also includes $10,423.75 from the sale of town-owned properties.

In elections Saturday, Selectman Carl Curtis is seeking reelection to a three-year term, and other town incumbents are also expected to run again.

26, and includes a small pond.

"The primary reason we're looking to buy it is because it was offered to us, and it connects to town property," said Town Manager Vern Maxfield.

The water supply across the street could be used by the Fire Department. We'd have no other plans for the land other than keeping it neat and clean."

Another article asks townspeople to give the authority to selectmen to close specific roads, or portions of those roads, to winter maintenance.

"If it passes, we'll have a public hearing shortly after May 1, and propose a list of roads to be closed," Maxfield said.

Pay raises of 6 percent are also being proposed for Maxfield and Deputy Town Clerk Betty Benner. Maxfield said they each received a 10 percent increase last year.

He said pay raises for other town employees will be discussed by selectmen in August.

In order to keep taxes down, selectmen are recommending decreased or no funding for several items.

Absent from this year's warrant is an article to raise $20,000 for the Whitman Library expansion account. That amount has been put into the account in each of the past two years.

Selectmen are also asking lesser amounts for the tax account and fire truck reserve fund -- $30,000 versus $40,000, and $5,000 versus $10,000 in 1994, respectively.

Abolishing term limits for the Planning Board will not be up for debate this year.

Resident Marcel Polak had requested an article on the issue, but selectmen did not include it because Planning Board members were against it.

Voters had turned down such an article at the last two Town Meetings -- last year by a vote of 31-35.

It had failed twice, and the Planning Board felt the people had spoken. The selectmen backed the Planning Board. They said if someone had wanted the article bad enough, they could have submitted a petition," Maxfield said.

Those seats are currently held by Leon Poland, T.L. McGee, and Rosalee Poland, respectively.

McGee is expected to seek reelection, but Maxfield was unsure of the other officials. He said he did not know of anyone new interested in the positions.

prove an indemnification agreement so the $700 purchase of the town's landfill property from the James River Company can be finalized.

Another article asks that $13,750 received as insurance payment when the town's plow truck burned last fall, be placed in the capital equipment account.

Selectmen are recommending that the town contract for snowplowing in the future, but Brown said the decision on whether to contract or purchase another truck will probably require a special Town Meeting.

Brown said it is difficult to know at this time if the mil rate, now at 10.3, will go up. He said the school costs and the town's decision on plowing would be among the determining factors.

Elections for town officials including Brown's selectman's seat, town clerk, tax collector, treasurer (all currently held by Clayton Thompson), and a school committee seat now held by Tammy Grondin, will also take place.

Brown said he will run for his seat, but he was not sure about the others. He said other residents have shown interest in all the open seats, but he declined to specify names.

Brown said town officials are not requesting increases in compensation.

TAXES

Strategy #12 -- Choose the right option for paying the "kiddie tax"

When it comes to the kiddie tax, choosing the easy filing option may be the more costly choice.

If your child is under age 14 and has unearned income (such as interest or dividends) exceeding $1,200, the kiddie tax applies your highest tax rate to the excess amount.

Under certain circumstances you may elect to report your child's unearned income on your own tax return, saving you the trouble of filing a separate return for your child. However, reporting your child's unearned income on your return may affect your family's overall tax bill, increasing it in some cases and decreasing it in others.

For assistance with the kiddie tax or any of your tax concerns, contact --

 The firemen's race was one of many events this weekend at Sunday River, as Maine Handicapped Skiing celebrated its 10th anniversary Ski-A-Thon. The 600-plus participants raised a record $247,000 in support of MHS adaptive skiing programs for children and adults with a physical disability. The Ski-A-Thon has raised $1,881,000 and is the largest single day fundraising event in the State of Maine. MHS collected 90 percent of all pledges in 1994. Event sponsors make it possible for 95 percent of all pledges to go directly to providing program services.

The committee also spent a full meeting refining the definitions in the ordinance.

The recommendations still have a long way to go before they face town voters — who will have the final say as to whether or not they should be adopted.

After a review by the combined boards, the recommendations will be the subject of a informational hearing, then a public hearing. At both meetings residents will be able to comment on the recommendations and suggest further -- or fewer -- changes.

"People will have plenty of opportunity to look them over and contribute to the process," said town Planning Assistant Nancy Schleifer.

Next week's Citizen will look at the proposed revisions in detail.

whether the town might buy a used truck instead, pointing out that the $70,000 figure would nearly double the town's indebtedness.

Selectman Fernand Corriveau said he favored going with a new truck, since the town would get about half the usage out of a used one.

"We usually get 12 to 14 years out of a truck," he said, adding that now would be a good time to buy, as the federal government may eliminate municipal discounts on town vehicles as part of budget-cutting measures.

"It would be about $31,000 more without the discount," he said.

On Corriveau's recommendation voters also reduced from $10,000 to $7,000 the amount of money to be raised for a long-term note on the truck for this year, as the purchase would not be made until the middle of the year.

Voters also approved $172,540 in tuition to SAD44, with $61,540 as the local share. Last year's figures were $178,268 and $67,023, respectively.

The $893,972 proposed NOVA Region 9 budget (local share $12,405) was also approved, in a vote to be taken in all NOVA member towns.

In another NOVA region vote, townspersons approved SAD44's request to offer hospitality and graphic arts vocational programs at Telstar next year.

NOVA Director Dewaine Craig explained that the programs would be funded through SAD44's budget, and other NOVA school units could participate on a tuition basis.

He said the vote on the article, which will take place in each individual NOVA member town or district, would ensure that everyone is aware of the plan, which was drawn up after the NOVA Board had approved the main budget.

Raises for town officials were also approved.

Voters also approved $8,000 for the Fire Department. Fire Chief Ken Cole said the department had sent a bill for $4,000 to the trucking company involved in a January accident on Route 2 that caused a fuel spill, but he did not expect to collect on it.

State Rep. Al Barth of Bethel moderated the meeting.

U.S.S.A. ranks Gould alpine skiers among nation's best

Seven Gould Academy alpine ski racers are currently ranked in the top 50 in the super giant slalom event among 15-year-old competitors nationwide, according to the United States Ski Association, which recently announced its latest rankings for the 1994-95 season.

Parker Gray '97 led Gould's boys by breaking into the top 10, with a ninth place ranking. Dana Drummond '97, David Riss '97, E.J. Cheney '98, Drew Drummond '98, and Dan LeBlanc '97 took the 14th, 16th, 17th, and 27th spots.

For the girls, Abby Lefebvre '97 earned the 36th position. When ranked against super giant slalom racers exclusively from the East, Gray, Dana Drummond, Riss, Cheney, Drew Drummond, LeBlanc, and Lefebvre jump to the second, fourth, fifth, sixth, eighth, 12th and 19th positions, respectively.

late season races

Several Gould racers are scheduled to compete in late season races. Gray, Dana Drummond, Riss, Cheney, Drew Drummond, LeBlanc and teammate Asher Gheriner '97 will compete in two slalom events sponsored by the International Ski Federation.

The Gould skiers will compete against some of the top racers in the nation March 25 and 26 in Marquette, Mich. "Our team has performed extremely well in the super-G and downhill events this season, but now we must spend some time in slalom," said Gould's director of skiing Tim LaVallee. "These athletes gain a tremendous amount of experience from each competition, especially at the international level."

Freshman Eva Cardova heads west as well, but even farther west than Michigan. Cardova is scheduled to compete at the U.S. Senior National Championships in Park City, Utah. Cardova will compete in the slalom and giant slalom events March 26 and 27. "We feel that Eva is ready to race at the elite level," LaVallee said. "We don't have any performance expectations, it's just a stepping stone in Eva's long-term goal of reaching the Olympics someday."

Historical Society essay contest

The Bethel Historical Society will once again sponsor the Dr. Moses Mason Award essay contest.

Named for Dr. Moses Mason (1789-1866), whose notes on local history are now preserved in the society's archives, the award is made annually to the Gould Academy or Telstar Regional High School student who, in the opinion of the judges, writes the best essay on a local history subject.

The award, consisting of a $100 savings bond and a certificate of commendation suitable for framing, is presented at the respective school's annual awards ceremony. It was established in 1978 by the society's Board of Trustees to promote student research in local history.

In order to qualify, a student must be in grade 9-12 either at Gould or Telstar and submit an original essay.

SSAT GIVEN AT GOULD

The Secondary Schools Admissions Test (SSAT) will be given at Gould Academy on April 22. Students interested in applying to independent schools for the fall of 1995 are encouraged to take the test.

NOTES FROM Adult Education

Tim Mills will be giving a new version of his photo course in six unusually intensive sessions starting Thursday, March 30. Each session will be from 6:30-9 p.m. and will show both beginners and more advanced photographers the fastest ways to get impressive results. Assignments will be given in landscapes, townscapes, informal portraiture and architectural subjects. Students will then see how to put together what they have learned to document their travels and their family history.

Special panoramic projection will be used in class and students will have access to unusual equipment. Each pupil will build an album or slide collection of high quality and learn how to prepare pictures for Photo CD and computer storage formats to come.

The first class will deal with equipment and materials and will interest all who wish to make the most of a limited budget. Mills will show how to get started for less than $100 with top optical quality.

Two field trips are planned, during which students can try out various outfits, including a Leica or Contax rangefinder system. To sign up or find out more call the Adult Education office at 824-2780.
